POETRY.

WHEN KING CAMBYSES WENT TO WAR.

BY WALTER ANONYM.

When King Cambyses went to war
(So ancient history vouches)
His army took no rifles—nor
A bullet in their pouches.

Oh! vivid long in history
The record shall remain
Of that blow-less—bloodless victory
Upon Pefusium's plain.

Fearless they met the foe's advance,
Secure in their position.
Nor bent a bow, nor couched a lance,
Their shield was superstition.

The hideous idols of his foes
He coolly placed in van,
That they might ward the invaders' blows
When desperate fight began.

Each warrior calmly bore in front
Some monster statuette;
Vicariously to bear the brunt,
When foe with foe was met.

Th' Egyptians, petrified with dread,
Dared not a weapon wield:
But, panic-stricken, turned and fled,
As from a haunted field!

Thus may it be when South and North—
(Heaven long forefend the day)
In armed hostility go forth
To meet in deadly fray.

Let every Southron soldier wear—
(Then is he fully armed)—
An Ebon mask with crispy hair;
The foe would be disarmed!

Bloodless would be the intended fight,
The 'slogan' wild would rend the air,
'Death to the Anglo Saxon Knight!
But spare the Ebon Idol, spare!'

MISCELLANEOUS.

DIVING AT SEBASTOPOL

A letter describing the operations at Sebastopol for raising the sunken Russian ships, relates the following incident:

Nov. 5.—We had a terrible excitement on board one day last week. One of the divers (Harris, the English mariner,) a first-rate fellow, and bold as a lion, goes down examining the outside of the ship on which they are at work. He had been forward and was going aft, along the bottom, in sixty feet of water, when he suddenly signaled for more air, and though the pressure was instantly increased, two more signals for 'air' and 'to come up,' followed in rapid succession, and then ceased all reply to signals given. Thinking the fault was in the air-pump, the speed was increased until a pipe bursting near the engine showed that the hose was foul. Then they shouted to the other diving party, in a row-boat at a little distance, to come to the rescue. That diver was brought up by his tenders, and they commenced rowing for the steamer. Meanwhile, poor Harris made no more response to the anxious signalling of his tenders, and they had tried in vain to haul him up—the 'life-line' was also foul. The pump was kept slowly in motion, but no bubbles came up from the water, and we knew that no air was reaching him. The row-boat was coming as fast as possible, but I thought it never would arrive. At last they came alongside. The diver's helmet was closed, strong hands worked rapidly and silently, and in an instant he was lowered out of sight, the hose of his suffocating companion in his hand; there was an interval of two or three minutes of fearful suspense, in which no word was spoken by any the score of men gathered there, save one whisper—'It must be too late.'

Suddenly a second column of rising air-bubbles appeared. 'The hose is cleared—he has air,' several voices spoke eagerly. Then followed the signal for rising, and up they came—poor Harris stark and motionless. 'Stop the pump, he is dead,' said one, unscrewing the eye-glass through which he saw the ghastly countenance and frothy lips. But the cold air striking his livid face, the eyelids half opened and closed again. 'He is alive,' they all cried joyfully, and removing the unsightly helmet and dashing water on his head and breast, he presently began to breathe perceptibly, and after an hour's diligent rubbing from as many strong and willing hands as could get around him, he began to come to consciousness. He suffered great pain for hours in the head and breast, but is now altogether recovered, and diving as usual. On the whole, it was such an occurrence as I hope may not happen here again; that ten minutes, in which we had the consciousness that a man was dying for want of assistance which we could by no means give, I cannot think of without a shudder. The hose had got fast under a port-cover in such a way as to cut off the air suddenly and entirely. The life-line was fast on some old rigging down in the mud under the bottom of the ship, where he had crawled in his zealous search after holes or injuries. He owes his life to the coolness and dexterity of the other diver, who providentially followed the hose and cleared it before descending to him, thus giving him air two minutes sooner than he could otherwise have received it; and it came late enough!

I remember last Winter discussing divers and diving with our friend ——. We were both uninstructed as to the particulars, like many others who have not seen the process, I have since had sufficient opportunity to observe. The dress is of gutta percha, or rubber cloth, large and loose, in one piece, pants, boots, waistcoat and sleeves, into which the diver is inserted from the top by his tenders after substituting heavy flannel drawers, socks, &c., for the ordinary apparel. Once tucked into this ample casing, the head is covered with a close-fitting woolen cap, the breast plate and helmet of iron put on, the latter a hollow globe, much larger, of course, than the head, and provided with three little windows, grated and glazed, called eye-glasses: the front one is always open while dressing. The upper part of the dress is now fastened to the breast-plate, being placed between its edge and a covering metallic rim which is then firmly screwed to its place by means of a wrench, making the connection water-tight. Heavy cow-hide brogans, with soles of lead three quarters of an inch thick, strong rubber rings for the wrist which prevent water from entering the sleeve, and the girdle of shot, weighing some seventy-five pounds, complete the tiring. The life-line is tied round the waist, the sheath-knife placed in his belt, the pump is started, the eye-glass screwed in, and he is ready to descend.—The dress being now filled with air, the shapeless body and limbs of the monster swelling to a size fitting that of his head, making altogether a hideous figure, which you are not sorry to see vanish out of sight, wondering what sort of a reception the mermaids will give him if he falls in their way. [The fish are not afraid of them—they sometimes bring up a pocket full.] The hose which provides the air, is of gutta percha, of half inch bore, and attached to the helmet just at the bump of self-esteem. The escape valve is below it. The life line, by which signals are transmitted, is passed through a loop on the right eye-glass, so that the slightest motions are felt. He usually descends part of the way, at least, on a rope-ladder, but is sometimes lowered by the life-line from the first.

The pressure of air is gradually increased as he goes lower, more force being required, of course, to supply the air. If the pump is worked by hand it requires four men to tend it—two turning at once, and frequently changing. Two 'tenders' stand by—one holding the hose the other the life-line, the latter literally holding the diver's life in his hand, as inattention to signals frequently might cause his death. Once on the bottom, or on the ship, our mer-man walks about or works as elsewhere. Our divers for three months past have averaged perhaps four and a half hours under water, and hard at work per diem. They have frequently, however, been down six and even eight hours, in water from thirty to sixty feet deep. They can descend in water one hundred and fifty feet, but do not like to work deeper than one hundred, the increased pressure sensibly affecting the head at a greater depth. It would be interesting to know upon what physical characteristics the ability to endure the pressure inevitable in descending under water depends. I can discover no difference in quantity or quality of brain or lungs between some who can stay down hours without inconvenience and others who cannot go at all, or who, on trial, have suffered long and severealy after coming up from the merest experimental dive. And from the regular divers are of various temperaments; but one thing is common to all—that is, broad shoulders and deep chests; thus, large lungs are indispensable. I fancy; but that is not all, for some of the best provided in that respect have been unable to stay.

A WIFE COMPRESSED INTO A RING.—A certain Russian noble, who lately visited Paris, was noticed to be constantly plunged in deep sadness. He wore on his finger a very remarkable ring, large enough for a bracelet, and extended over his hand like a buckler for the ring finger. It was a greenish color, and was traversed by red veins. He attracted the attention of everybody, but no one was bold enough to interrogate the mysterious stranger, until one day a lady, meeting him in a public parlor, ventured to say, 'You wear a very handsome ring.' The Russian made a move as though he would conceal his hand, but that feeling gave way to a desire to unburden himself. 'It is not a ring,' he answered, 'but a sepulchre!' A shudder passed through the whole company. 'This jewel, Madam,' he continued, 'is my wife. I had the misfortune to lose her some years since, in Russia. She was an Italian, and dreaded the icy bed which awaited her after this life. I carried her remains to Germany where I was acquainted with a celebrated chemist, whom I directed to make of the body a solid substance, which I could always carry about me.—Eight days after he sent for me and showed me the empty coffin, a horrid collection of instruments and alembics. This jewel was laying on a table. He had through means of some corrosive substances and powerful pressure reduced and compressed that which was my wife into this jewel, which shall never more leave me.'

This burial by chemistry is an improvement upon the process of cremation lately proposed by the French papers. Should it become popular a widow may hereafter have her husband made into a bracelet with a chain attached to remind her of her hymenial bond. A husband will have his wife done into a pin, and certain academicians—old fogies—we know would make very good coat buttons.

ELOQUENCE.

Gentlemen of the jury, (said a Western lawyer,) it is with feelings of no ordinary commotion that I rise to defend my injured client from the attacks that have been made on his hitherto unapproachable character. I feel, gentlemen, that though a good deal smarter than any of you, even the judge himself, yet I am utterly incompetent to present this case in that magnanimous and heart-rending light which its importance demands; and I trust gentlemen, that whatever I may lack in presenting the subject, will be immediately made up by your own natural good sense and discernment, if you have got any.

The counsel for the prosecution, gentlemen, will undoubtedly attempt to heave dust in your eyes. He will tell you that his client is preeminently a man of function—that he is a man of undoubted and implacable veracity—that he is a man who would scorn to fetch an action against another merely to gratify his own personal corporosity; but gentlemen, let me cautionate you how to rely upon such specious reasoning like this. I myself apprehend that this suit has been wilfully and maliciously fotch, gentlemen, for the sole and only purpose of brow-beating my client here, and in an eminent manner grinding the face of the poor, and I apprehend also, that if you could look into that man's heart, and read there the motives that have impelled him to fotch this suit, such a picture of mortal turpentine, and heart-felt ingratitude would be brought to light as have never before been exhibited since the falls of Niagara.

Now, gentlemen, I want to make a brilliant appeal to the kind symmentries of your natur, and see if I can't wrap your judgments a little in favor of my unfortunate client here, and then I shall fotch my arguments to a close. Here is a poor man, with a numerous wife and child depending upon him for their daily bread and butter, wantonly fotched up here and arranged before an intellectual jury on the charge of ignominously hooking, yes, hooking six quarts of whiskey. You, gentlemen, have all been placed in the same situation, and you know how to feel for the misfortunes of my client, and I humbly calculate that you will not permit the gushings of your sympathizing hearts to be quenched in the bud by the surruptions and superagating opponent on the other side.

The law expressly declares, gentlemen, in the beautiful language of Shakspeare, where no doubt exists of the guilt of the prisoner, it is your duty to lean upon the side of justice and fotch him in innocent. If you keep that fact in view in the case of my client, gentlemen, you will have the honor of making a friend of him and all his relations, and you can look upon this occasion and reflect with pleasure that you did as you have been done by, but if on the other hand, you disregard this great principle of law, and set at naught my eloquent remarks, and fotch him in guilty, the silent twitches of conscience will follow you over every fair cornfield, I reckon, and my injured and down-trodden client will be pretty apt to light on you some of these nights, as my cat lights on a sasser of new milk.

A DUST STORY.—The following story is told of the Turkish officer who is Mohammed Pacha's secretary. He has been used to the sandy deserts of Syria, and on going out yesterday afternoon, found himself enveloped in a whirlwind of dust.

Suddenly (so the story goes) he was heard to call upon Allah in a loud voice, and threw himself flat on his face in the street. Some of the bystanders lifted him up, under the impression that he had been taken with an epileptic fit; but on being questioned, he stared wildly around him, and asked whether it was possible it was over so soon?

'What is over?' asked Mr. Oscanyan, who happened to be passing, addressing him in his native tongue.

'Oh! Effendi!' cried the Arab. 'I was walking through this pleasant bazaar, wondering at the beauty of the unveiled women, and thinking how far away I was from my native desert, when behold, I raised my eyes, and beheld a cloud of dust, loftier than the loftiest simoon of Sahara, coming toward me. Certain that I was about to perish by the most miserable of deaths, I did according to the fashion of the desert, and sought to escape the simoon by burying my face in the sand. I had scarcely done so when those people lifted me up and behold the simoon was no longer there.'

Oscanyan laughed, and told the Arab that what he believed to be the simoon was simply the accumulated dust of the city, swept by the wind, and that the inhabitants were so accustomed to it that they went on, year after year, without taking any preventive measures.

But the Arab shook his head as he passed on, and muttered to himself:

'Mashallah! but they are a wonderful people, these Yankees! We have the simoon only in the desert, but they have it in their streets!'

Terrible Warning.—A Miss Burt, of Glasgow, recently broke her neck while resisting the attempt of a young man to kiss her. The editor of the Shasta Courier thus feelingly comments upon the melancholy affair:

'This furnishes a fearful warning to young ladies. We know by personal experience, (in days gone by alas!) how prone girls are to peril their precious necks by ker-u-t-ching away from a fellow at a time when, by judicious exercise of sit-still-and-hold-your-heart-steady-activeness, perfect happiness would have been shed abroad, and the ambient air made luminous with glory. Dear girls, hold your heads still, and don't break your darling necks!'

THE ENGLISHMAN'S SNUFF BOX.

The French papers have not, under the influence of the alliance, ceased to have their jokes upon Englishmen, and one of the drollest is told as follows, by the Union Bretonne, from which we translate it:

Lord C., well known for his eccentricities, went lately to the establishment of one of our most celebrated workers in fancy articles.

'I want you to make me,' said he, 'a snuff-box with a view of my chateau on the lid.'

'It is very easily done,' was the reply, 'if my Lord will furnish me with the design.'

'I will; but I want, also, at the entrance of my chateau, a niche in which there shall be a dog.'

'That, too, shall be provided,' answered the workman.

'But I want, also, that some means should be contrived by which, as soon, as any one looks at the dog, he shall back into the niche, and only re-appear when he is no longer looked at.'

The workman looked inquiringly, as if to ascertain whether his customer was not the victim of some mystification. Reassured by his examination, and, like a clever man, understanding how to take advantage of the affair, he said to the Englishman:

'What you ask of me is very hard to comply with; such a snuff-box will be very expensive, it will cost you a thousand crowns.'

'Very well; I will pay you a thousand crowns.'

'Then, my Lord, it shall be made according to your wishes, and in a month I shall have the honor of delivering it to you.'

A month later the workman presented himself to Lord C.

'My Lord,' said he, 'here is your snuff-box.'

Lord C. took it, examined it, and said, 'That is my chateau with its turrets, and there is the niche by the door-way. But I see no dog.'

'Did not your Lordship,' said the workman, 'say that you wished the dog to disappear when he was looked at?'

'I did,' replied his Lordship.

'And that he should re-appear when no longer looked at?'

'That is true, also,' was the reply.

'Well,' said the workman, 'you are looking at it, and the dog has gone into the niche. Put the box in your pocket, and the dog will re-appear immediately.'

Lord C. reflected a moment, and then exclaimed, 'All right, all right.' He put the box in his pocket, and took out of his pocket-book three bank bills of a thousand francs each, and handed them to the skilful workman.

DESPERATE ENCOUNTER WITH DOGS.—The South-Side Democrat says that Mr. Thos. Whitworth, residing in Dinwiddie county, a few miles from Petersburg, was badly bitten by his own dogs, a few days since, under the following circumstances:

He was on his way to the meat house, accompanied by a servant woman, when from some cause his two large bull dogs flew at her. He turned, on hearing the cries of the woman, and succeeding in rescuing her, when she ran some distance and fell fainting to the ground. The dogs now vigorously attacked him, and for some time it required all his efforts to prevent them from dragging him to the ground.—His strength was fast failing him, he had nothing with which he could defend himself, and no one was near to render him assistance. A billet of wood lay upon the ground, and he thought that if he could gain sufficient time to stoop and secure it, he might be able to drive them off. By a renewed effort with his feet he succeeded in forcing them back, and quickly reached for the billet, but ere his fingers reached it the larger dog, taking advantage of his position, seized him by the neck. Mr. Whitworth had now nearly given up all hopes of rescue, but with admirable presence of mind, he summoned his remaining strength, and grasping the dog by the throat succeeded in choking him off and forced him against the house, where he continued to hold him, when the other dog caught him by the arm which held the former. A forcible blow from the unencumbered hand caused him to release his hold, but only to change his attack to another quarter, and burying his teeth in Mr. W.'s hip he continued to wrench and chew the flesh. In the meantime, a man working in the field, attracted by the screams of the woman, before fainting, and the continued cries of the daughter of Mr. Whitworth, who observed, from the window the desperate situation of her father, hastened to the house and arrived at this crisis, and after a severe encounter with the smaller dog, succeeded in driving him off. He then returned to the assistance of Mr. W., who still held the larger dog choking him against the house, and was directed by him to knock the dog on the head with an axe, which was accordingly done, and the dog thrown aside for dead, but he revived in the course of an hour, and went about the premises as if nothing had occurred. As may be expected, Mr. W. was assisted to the house in a deplorable condition. The following day the larger dog was shot, and it is the intention of Mr. W. to dispose of the other.

Gen. Jim Lane made a rail road speech at Emporia in Kansas a few weeks ago, in the course of which he denied that he was an Abolitionist, and declared his readiness to assist in arresting runaway negroes. He expressed great anxiety to get on good terms with the Border Ruffians; hoped they would let by-gones be by-gones.

CORRUPTION AT WASHINGTON.

The editor of the Chicago (Ill.) Daily Times, the leading Democratic paper of that State, having recently sojourned five days at the national capital, publishes on his return home a long editorial, giving a terrible picture of the prevalent corruption. He says that personal and political depravity never before had such a harvest as they are now reaping in the federal city; that offices are bought just as openly as the butcher buys the beef intended for his customers; that office brokers have the run of the Senate antechamber, of the departments, and the exective mansion, and the actual sum of money to be paid for an office is as publicly named, by these brokers and their clients, as the prices of dry goods are named between a dealer of such articles and his customers.

As the Times was one of the most ardent advocates of the election of James Buchanan, it is not unfair to place this frightful picture which it has drawn of depravity and corruption existing under the very nose of the President, to the account of disappointed hopes of personal reward for partisan service. Yet it is a hard case that the nation and the government should be consigned to infamy, because a partisan editor has not received his expected share of the loaves and fishes.

FOLLOWING A SHARK.—Some time ago, says the Norfolk Argus, a gentleman and one of his servants, a stalwart negro, went fishing for rock on the Bay shore, about ten miles from Norfolk. They cast their hooks and lines, and waited for a bite.

The big darkey, after wading out some feet from the shore, tied the line around his body. His owner told him there was danger in doing so; but the sable fisherman suspected no difficulty or accident. Soon an old shark, a real old sea dog, came along and swallowed the bait with a good relish, and Sambo held the line with a firm grasp. The powerful fish, however, drew him gradually out in deep water, when, finding that he was in danger of being carried out to sea, in order to cut the line he had made a desperate grasp at his knife, which was fastened to his head half shut, a portion of his hair being between the blade and the handle; but it was too late. The hungry monster of the deep, by a rapid movement, slackened the line and dashed furiously out from the shore, followed by the darkey, who alternately disappeared beneath the waves and rose to the surface, grabbing at his knife as he rushed on with almost lightning speed in the wake of the shark. He was seen at the distance of nearly a mile, as he occasionally rose to the surface; but soon disappeared entirely far beyond the reach of assistance, a victim to his own hazardous daring and imprudent temerity.

'NORTHERN CLERGYMEN AGAIN.—We see it stated in the papers, that a paper has been in circulation recently among the Clergymen of Chicago, pledging them to recommend to their respective congregations meeting on Saturday, 'for the purpose of beseeching the Almighty to interpose in the struggle now going on in Washington, and prevent the consummation of the Kansas iniquity.' These reverend gentlemen might profitably remember that 'the prayers of the wicked are an abomination;' or if they must meddle with other people's affairs, they might take a look round their own city, with the local columns of their own newspapers, for a guide. They would find 'iniquity' enough there to practice on for some time to come.

ELIZABETH CITY:

TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 6, 1858.

Cash System.—Hereafter all job-work done in this office will be cash on delivery. This system is generally carried out by all newspapers published, and our interest and convenience render it necessary for us to pursue the same course. It is unpleasant for us to dun our patrons, and they are hardly willing to have such trivial accounts entered on our books. We hope the above is a sufficient warning to persons having work of this kind done at the Pioneer office.

☞ Thanks to the Hon. H. M. Shaw for his continued remembrance of us.

☞ Verses—"To Jonah," received, but anonymous. We cannot publish.

☞ We call attention to the card of Geo. S. Stevenson, and others, to be found in our advertising columns.

☞ The proceedings of the Bertie Democratic meeting shall appear next week. We did not notice them until too late for their publication in to-day's paper.

THE LADY'S HOME MAGAZINE, for April, is in hand, and its contents are well calculated to win for it a more extensive patronage. It is an instructive and entertaining periodical.

N. CAROLINA JOURNAL OF EDUCATION.—The publishers have sent us the April number of this work, and we are glad to see an evident improvement in it. The present number is neat in execution and its contents are good.

OUR PAPER.—It will be seen that we have made our paper smaller in size than it has been heretofore. By this alteration we do not intend that the quantity of reading matter shall be curtailed, but we promise to add to this quantity; and, by this means, and by inserting only those advertisements for which we get paid, furnish our friends with a journal which we hope will be to them a welcome visitor.

H. W. MILLER.

Rumor has, for some time back, placed this gentleman among the friends and supporters of the administration. The following letter to the editor of the Raleigh Register, indicates that there is something yet to be told. We shall not be surprised to hear the rumor confirmed by another letter from Mr. Miller:

"Dear Sir: I do not consider myself a member of the 'Executive Committee of the American Party.' Both my authority as Chairman, and duty as a member of that Committee, ceased with the Presidential campaign of 1856."

"POOR JACKO!"—Under this head, our neighbor of the Sentinel, in his paper of the 27th ult., chronicled the death of a pet monkey, at the Marine Hospital, which was destroyed by fire, on the memorable morning of the 22d March, 1858, and "Jacko" was reported as having perished in the flames. This, it seems, is a hoax; for we are informed that the animal with a long "narrative" had been sold to a person residing several miles from here, some time before the fire took place, and was therefore beyond the reach of the devouring element. The "agonizing cries" of that "poor brute," were the screams of a cat!

NEW ENGINE.

The disastrous fire with which our town has been visited, has aroused our people to the necessity of providing themselves with the means to combat the terrible element another time. A subscription has been started under the direction of the Corporation, which it has headed with a subscription of $500, for the purpose of supplying the town with two new engines, and apparatus. Many have responded liberally to the call of our worthy Mayor and Commissioners, but there is yet a considerable deficiency. We hope that those who have not yet put down their names, will do so immediately, and so enable the enterprise to be quickly completed.

THE FIRE.

The effect of the recent destructive conflagration upon the business of Elizabeth City cannot fail to be severely felt, but is with sincere pleasure that we witness the preparations that are being made to speedily repair the damage. Already contracts have been made for rebuilding, the ruins are being cleared away in several places, and from present indications, we shall soon see many handsome and substantial structures occupying the places of those so recently destroyed. We understand that Messrs. Whi e & Laverty, W. B Burgess, T. D. Knox, H. Culpepper, J. W. Hinton and J. J. Grandy contemplate the immediate erection of commodious brick stores, and we suppose the others will soon follow. It is the intention of W. H. Clark to replace his agricultural maching establishment, so soon as the spring trade will permit him to commence operations.

HON. J. A. GILMER.

Before this article shall be before our readers, the vote upon the admission of Kansas may have been taken, and the course of the gentleman whose name stands above, will be definitely settled. At present we can only judge what it will be upon the final passage of the bill, by what it has been during its progress through the House. We believe that he will vote against the bill. All that he has said or done leads us irresistibly to this conclusion. He has been found side by side with the Black Republicans in nearly every instance where the bill was concerned, and they now confidently calculate upon his support in the final struggle. So also with some two or three others of the Southern Know-Nothings. The issue involved in this controversy is not simply the admission of Kansas. If this were all, the contest could never have assumed the importance which it has. It has a deeper, a more significant bearing than the mere admission of a State into the confederacy; if this were all, the application of Minnesota would command the same attention that has been given to Kansas. But there is a principle involved which strikes at the very existence of Southern equality, which must either establish the right of the slaveholding States to be considered as possessing the same privileges with their brethren of the North, or consign them to an inferior position among the members of the confederacy. The principle involved is nothing more nor less than the right of a State tolerating slavery in her constitution to be admitted into the Union. This is the gist of the matter, and the defeat of Kansas with the Lecompton constitution may be regarded as the death blow to every subsequent attempt to bring in a slave State, or to preserve an equilibrium between the slaveholding and the non-slaveholding interests. The fight over Kansas is a fight on the part of the South for equal rights, and equal privileges. It is a contest for the preservation of the position assigned her by the Constitution, as the co-equal of the North. If the conduct of the free soil leaders did not place this fact beyond doubt, the avowal of it upon the floor of Congress would settle the matter. The unequivocal and explicit declarations of members in both branches, that no more slave States were to be admitted, strips the Kansas question of the gew-gaw arguments that have been thrown around it, and presents it to the American people in its true colors, and in its proper shape.—There can be no mistaking the issue; subterfuge or trickery cannot cover up the naked principle to be decided; and however much the more politic and cautious of the enemies of the South may endeavor to conceal the real intent and design of their labors, he that fails to see it must be wilfully and intentionally blind. What, then, must be thought of Southern men who can stand by and assist in the perpetration of this foul and damnable wrong? What will the constituents of these Southern representatives, who are aiding Northern fanatics in striking this fatal blow to the South, and who are assisting in consigning her to a position of inferiority and abject servitude to the free States, think? Bell and Crittenden, we know, will reap the reward of the deed which will forever hang like a millstone about their necks. The patriotic and chivalrous sons of Tennessee and Kentucky can never rest under the odium which the act of these men has affixed to their names, and their indignation will sweep them, as the fiery simoon, from the places which they have so unworthily filled. And so will it be with Southern members of the lower House, who shall dare to help forward the act of degradation. We repeat, that the only point to be settled in this controversy is, shall another slave State come into the Union, and will a North Carolina member, will Mr. J. A. Gilmer, by his vote, say that hereafter the South is not to be regarded as entitled to the same rights and privileges that belong to another section of the Confederacy? We confess to a belief that such is his intention. His past course forces the conviction upon us; his recent speech, we fear, is but the prelude to the fatal deed.—That speech is the collected arguments of every Black Republican speaker in the House and Senate, interspersed with the stale and worn out anecdotes, minus the "Elephant story," with which he embellished his gubernatorial addresses. We shall not be surprised then to find him, as previously, voting with Giddings, Grow, Gilman, Washburne & Co., upon the passage of the bill. Should such be his course, we hope that the people of his State will not be silent, but that he may be made to feel the force of an opinion which he has outraged and set at defiance.

Since the above was written, the vote upon the Kansas bill has been taken, and resulted in its defeat with the Lecompton Constitution. Crittendens amendment which provides for the admission of Kansas, but refers the constitution to the people for their votes—if rejected, a convention is to be called, to form a new constitution, and as soon as the latter be approved, the President is to issue a proclamation, and Kansas be admitted without further action by Congress, was then adopted by 8 majority. We have not seen the yeas and nays upon the amendment, but we understand, that the name of J. A. GILMER, OF NORTH CAROLINA—with several other Southern Know Nothings,—are to be found with the Black Republicans. More anon.

THE LETTER OF JUDGE ELLIS.

The last Raleigh Standard contains a letter written by the Hon. J. W. Ellis in November last, to W. F. Dancy, Esq., in reply to inquiries made by the latter gentleman touching his—Judge Ellis'—opinions upon certain public questions. Among these, was that of distribution. The publication of this letter has been made necessary by the course of certain opponents of Judge Ellis, who in their determination to defeat his nomination, have industriously circulated the charge that he was unsound upon the land question. This accusation was based upon the statements of Mr. Cantwell, whilst editing the Raleigh Statesman. Mr. Cantwell exonorates Judge Ellis from ever having entertained opinions adverse to the general sentiment of the Democratic party upon this subject, and explains the whole matter in a clear and satisfactory manner. So resolute, however, are these gentlemen in effecting the defeat of Judge Ellis before the Convention, that they continue to ring the charge, and insinuate that there is something behind which Mr. Cantwell has not yet told. It was also said that a letter had been written to Mr. Dancy by Judge Ellis, in which distribution sentiments were to be found. The friends of Mr. Holden were loud in their calls for this letter, expecting to substantiate the statement which had been made, and so weaken the confidence of the Democracy in rival. The letter, though not intended for publication, is before the public, and instead of sustaining the charge, clearly proves Judge Ellis to have been an uncompromising opponent of distribution under any and every name that has been used to disguise its deformities. This he avows in the following extract from his letter:

"From the foregoing observations, you will perceive that I am opposed to any scheme of distribution that may be presented. There exist not now, nor do I apprehend any circumstances, that will justify any such measure.

"I regard the very objects of the advocates of such measures as an invasion of the great principles of our federation, and an attack upon the public virtue and integrity. They are nothing less, Sir, than a reward offered for the votes of the people, a consideration, in money, for their suffrages. I dare say, that hopes of winning the popular favor, and consequent promotion and advancement for party friends, is the great secret moving influence that actuates a majority of the advocates of such measures. God grant that the people of this country may have a timely forewarning of the unholy attack, thus made upon their political virtue, and the sordid motives that govern it; for when seen, it will certainly be indignantly repelled, to the confusion and disaster of those politicians who make it.

"I look upon all such measures as inimical to the sovereignty of the States, and destructive of our political system. In policy I regard them as unwise, and leading to public extravagance and corruption."

We are rejoiced that this letter has made its appearance. Not only does it repel the attack made upon his Democracy, but it places him before the party as a Democrat of the right stamp. He desired that his letter should not be published, because its publication would subject him to the imputation of seeking the nomination, and as he says, "it is an office always to be conferred and never to be sought." The sentiments contained in this letter do credit to the head and heart of its author; it is clear, concise, and patriotic, and shows him to be more devoted to the interests of his party than to his own advancement. It fully sustains the high character which he has ever borne, and must recommend him to the esteem and support of his friends. Those who have sought to tarnish his fair name by asserting or insinuating this charge, should feel abashed at the signal overthrow of their scheme to accomplish his defeat. The effort has recoiled upon its authors, and the unworthy attempt will result to the advantage of him whom it was intended to injure. This war might be "carried into Africa," and if previous opinions are to be made a test, we advise the opponents of Judge Ellis to proceed with caution.

We felt assured that this matter would turn out as it has. We have the highest authority for knowing that Judge Ellis had never varied or deviated from the general sentiment entertained by the Democracy of the State upon the land question, and we looked forward with confidence to the demolishment of this airy fabric that an imprudent and over zealous rivalry had created. Such has been the result.

FIRE.—The Weldon correspondent of the Petersburg Express, states that the residence of Hon. Matt. W. Ransom, in Northampton county, was destroyed by fire last week.

The alarm of fire last night, was caused by the burning of a bed in a house occupied by negroes. There was a small child in bed at the time, and as the inmates of the house were absent, it was only saved by persons who, hearing its cries, broke in the house and rescued the child from an awful death.

RESUMPTION OF SPECIE PAYMENT.—The banks of Augusta, Ga., have resolved to resume specie payments simultaneously with those of Savannah, whether the day fixed upon be the 1st of May or June, irrespective of what may be done in South Carolina. What are the banks of Virginia going to do?—Baltimore Sun.

When will the banks of North Carolina resume?

☞ Two Yankees, one calling himself Gould Albin, and the other Silvester Albin, recently took "French leave" of Halifax town, without paying their board and bar bills. Wade W. Carter, Esq., the gentleman at whose house they stopped, offers $25 reward to get his hands upon either one or both of them. Pass 'em around!

☞ We see by some of our exchanges that John Miner Botts is spoken of as a candidate for the Mayoralty of Richmond. We would suggest that Kenneth Rayner be run for Mayor of Winton.

JUDGE PERSON.

It will be seen by the following letter copied from the Wilmington Journal, that Judge Person respectfully declines being considered a candidate for the nomination of the Democratic Convention for Governor:

FRANKLIN, MACON COUNTY, N. C., March 10th, 1858.

Messrs Editors: Your paper of the 26th ult., fell into my hands to-day, where, for the first time, I saw the proceedings of a "Democratic meeting" in Moore County, as copied by you from the "Carolinian." In one of the resolutions they "respectfully suggested my name to the consideration" of the Convention to be held at Charlotte, "for the office of Governor of this State." So long as any preference for me was expressed privately, I was content in the same way to make known my wishes—delicacy forbade any other course. But now it has assumed this public shape, I feel called upon to say publicly, that I do not desire the nomination, and to request my friends not to put my name before the Convention. This position was deliberately taken three months ago, and then announced to those who had approached me upon the subject. My private interest and aims in life do not lie in that direction, and I could not, without sacrificing both to a great degree, accept the nomination, if it were tendered. I did not come to this conclusion without hesitation, and it would be an affectation of indifference, which I do not feel, to say that it is not very desirable to be the Governor of such a State as ours, or the office would not confer honor, of which any of her sons might justly be proud.

I am fully sensible of the honor done me by the meeting in Moore. I prize it for itself,—but more, because it comes from my native county, and is voluntarily bestowed by those who were my friends when a boy, and who, since I became a man, have upon many occasions, manifested a sincere desire for my promotion. It would be less than manhood not to feel, and feel deeply, this additional kindness and mark of confidence. And while to them, as associates and friends from childhood, my gratitude may be more tender, it is none the less sincere to those elsewhere, who have expressed the wish to elevate me to the highest office in the State.

Very respectfully,
SAM'L J. PERSON.

From the Baltimore Patriot.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., March 29, 1858

Will you, in justice to an unfortunate family, and to oblige a regular reader and subscriber to your valuable paper, give a place to the following communication in your next paper.

I much regret to see in the Patriot of the 23d inst. a letter of your correspondent "Leon," of this place, in which, after giving a statement of the losses sustained by the great fire we had on the night of the 21st inst., he concludes with the following remarks in regard to N. A. Cohn's family: "The Dutch Jews—they are now lodged in jail—I learn, have partially confessed the deed." Now I unhesitatingly say, that had "Leon" reflected one moment, and written his communication unbiassed, he would not have sent forth for publication such a serious charge, without first being satisfied of its truth, or at least of some strong ground for its correctness, for no confession of any kind, giving the least ground for such a charge, has been made by either N. A. Cohn, his wife, or any member of his family. The charge of their having placed any, much less the largest and most valuable portion of their goods on board of a vessel, has already been proven false. Their insurance here amounts to about $3500; their loss is estimated at from $8,000 to $10,000. The insurance would not rebuild their houses destroyed. Whether they have any insurance elsewhere is as yet unknown; they positively deny having any; steps have been taken to find that out. I learn the information thus far received satisfies our authorities none has been made. If so, is it reasonable for any person to believe them guilty? Mr. N. A. Cohn is now what may be termed an old man. I have known him personally for about twenty years, have had many business transactions with him, and always found him honest, prompt, fair and correct in his dealings, and complying with his promises—It is hard for a man of his age to lose the hard earnings and savings of a long life of industry, but not only more so, but cruel, to try by unfounded expressions of "I learn," to deprive him of his good name and character.

As a friend of Mr. Cohn, and under a firm belief of his innocence of any attempt or knowledge how this calamity originated, or by whom, I think it but justice to him to give you, and through you to the public, this statement, not doubting you will give this communication as conspicuous a place in your paper as you gave to that of "Leon."

JUSTICE.

P. S.—The Cohns have been released from imprisonment.

BURIED ALIVE.—A DISTRESSING CASE. A letter dated Holland, Erie county, Pa., March 15, says:

A very afflictive dispensation of Providence has taken place within twenty miles of this place. A Presbyterian minister named Reed was going to attend a meeting of the Presbytery. He stopped over night with another minister at a private house. Mr. Reed was taken with a fit in the night and it was supposed he had died. The other minister, being in a hurry to get to the meeting in season, had him buried the next day. On his return from meeting he left word at Oxford, that their minister was dead and buried. His friends went immediately to get his remains and bring them to Oxford, when to their great sorrow, they discovered that he had been buried alive. The cover of the coffin, was split, and his shroud was completely torn off and he turned nearly on his face. He was a bachelor, and a very worthy man.—His dreadful death is much lamented.

A "ROYAL" TYPO.—According to an ancient usage in Prussia, all the Princes of the Royal family must learn a trade. It is stated that the Prince Frederic William, just married to the Princess Royal of England, learned the trade of a compositor in the printing office of Mr. Haul at Berlin.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING IN HERTFORD.

At a meeting of the Democracy of Hertford County, N. C., held in Winton, March 22, A. J. Perry, Esq., was called to the chair, and Dr. S. J. Wheeler and C. F. Lyon, Esq., requested to act as Secretaries.

Moved and seconded, a committee consisting of Messrs. J. W. Moore, Joseph E. Carter, A. W. Darden, Wm. S. Taylor, and J. J. Horton, was appointed to draft a series of resolutions, expressive of the feelings of the meeting.

During the retirement of this committee, a committee of two, consisting of Capt. E. Britt and R. W. Cobb, Esq., was appointed to request Solicitor E. C. Hines, and Messrs. Jos. E. Carter, Peebles and Gilliam, to address the meeting. Effective speeches were made by Messrs. Hines, Peebles and Carter.

The report of the committee appointed to draft a series of resolutions, was read and adopted as follows:

WHEREAS, it has been proposed by the Democratic central committee of the State of North Carolina, that we hold a Convention of the party in Charlotte, on the 14th day of April next;

Resolved, That we concur in the meeting proposed, and that thirty delegates be appointed by the Chairman of this meeting to represent the Democracy of this county in the said Convention.

Resolved, That we have an abiding confidence in the ability and integrity of Jas. Buchanan, as the President of these United States, and we cordially endorse the principles and policy of his Administration.

Resolved, That the course of Thomas Bragg, as the chief Executive of North Carolina, receives our unqualified admiration.

Resolved, That we as Southern Democrats unhesitatingly endorse the course of the Hon. H. M. Shaw, our immediate Representative, as to the admission of Kansas.

Resolved, That we will support the nominee of the Charlotte Convention.

The chairman then announced the following gentlemen as delegates:

Capt. E. D. Britt, J. R Darden, T. D. Vann, J. W. Barnes, J. E. Carter, Dr. R. H. Worthington, F. A. Nolley, H. G. Trader, Col. U. Vaughan, Dr. S. J. Wheeler, T. J. Deanes, William Vaughan, King Parker, Col. P. Jordan, A. G Vann, Wm. Holloman, Jos. Jordan, M. R. Harman, Col. C. Vann, L. Taylor, George Askew, Jas. Parker, Jas. P. Howell, Hugh Quinn, W. W. Mitchell, Dr. J. T. Lowter, Dr. G. C. Moore, Jno. W. Moore.

Resolved, That these resolutions be forwarded to the Citizen and Pioneer.

After which the meeting adjourned sine die.

A. J. PERRY, Ch'n.

S. J. WHEELER, C. F. LYON, } Secretaries.

THE CAUSE OF ANTI-SLAVERY.

The Abolitionists of Congress (under whatever different party names they seek to be known) are just now in great glee over what they believe to have been the effect of the speech of Senator Crittenden, in strengthening the cause of Abolitionism as that is to be involved in the next Presidential election. In few words, they think that the boldness with which Mr. Crittenden has come to the rescue of their purpose of defeating the admission of Kansas into the Union with a pro-slavery constitution, has nerved two American party representatives, of whose assistance they previously despaired, to stand with them to the bitter end. We allude to Messrs. Underwood of Kentucky, and Gilmer of North Carolina. They do not yet hope that Mr. Gilmer will go the whole hog for them, as they certainly count on Mr. Underwood's doing,—reckoning without their host in his case, we trust—but that he will pertinaciously vote with and for their cause upon every incidental question arising in the consideration of the Senate's Kansas State bill, where he can possibly so vote without enabling his constituents to comprehend at a glance the fact that he is effectively playing for the sake of thwarting the Democratic party, to make Kansas a none-slaveholding State.

It would astound the constituents of the Hon. Mr. Gilmer to hear the familiar conversations of the red-mouthed Abolitionists now in this city, wherein they speculate upon the service to their cause they hope and calculate Mr. Gilmer will render in the current Kansas contest. They argue that though not venturing to vote against the admission of Kansas into the Union on the Lecompton Constitution on the final question, he can and will aid them to the bitter end, by-voting with them upon every preliminary question, which, if carried against the Lecompton Constitution cause, will operate to secure its eventual defeat. For our part, we entertain no such poor opinion of Mr. Gilmer, who is a very emphatic and outspoken gentleman, as to believe that the Abolitionists are correct in congratulating themselves on having bagged him—body and breeches—for the furtherance of their ends. We prefer to await the developments of his course when the bill comes down from the Senate.

It was undertaken with special reference to the elucidation of the Holy Scriptures, the Talmud, the Works of Josephus, the Crusaders, and Pilgrim Chroniclers. The many valuable discoveries made in the Temple Enclosure, and other sacred localities, to which Dr. Barclay was admitted by special Firman, with permission to explore those hallowed spots, so jealously guarded for many centuries, and now for the first time presented to the Christian public, will introduce a new era in Sacred Topography.

Sinclair & Co's Mill, two trials, average time, 6 minutes and 58 seconds.

Advantages of the Young America or Excelsior Mill over all others: 1st, great strength and durability; 2d, simplicity, (having but one set screw to graduate the quality of grinding, which renders it so simple that it may be managed by any ordinary farm hand;) 3d, it will grind more corn, or corn and cob, in the same time, and to same quality, than any other mill in use of the same size; 4th, economy—that part of the mill which is most liable to wear, being separate from the main body of the machine, can be renewed when worn out, at the small cost of $3. Thus in the Young America or Excelsior mill, I present the best, cheapest and most durable mill ever offered to the Farmer. This mill is of large size and greater capacity than any other mill ever sold at the same price

Price, including extra plates, $50.

I am also manufacturing Cart and Wagon Wheels, Farm Wagons, Carts, Trucks, Drays, Plows, Harrows, Cultivators, Corn Shellers, and Agricultural Implements generally, and am better prepared to furnish farmers and merchants than any other house in the city.

Call and examine my stock and be convinced that it is to your interest to patronize Southern enterprize. I am unwilling to believe that all the men in Virginia and North Carolina prefer to build up the North and impoverish the South.

I have also a Foundry connected with my factory, and solicit orders for Castings generally.

and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every family in the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nearly every one of our families in any civilized country on the globe has learned, from some personal experience or that of their friends, or neighbors, the efficacy of this antidote for pulmonary disease. In the communities any where which have been scourged by consumption, some living trophy of its victory over the insidious and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. Where these diseases are most powerful antidote yet known to man for the formidable and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, it is also the pleasantest and safest remedy that can be employed for infants and young persons. Parents should have it in store against the insidious enemy that steals upon them unprepared. We have also the pleasure to believe the Cherry Pectoral saves more lives by preventing consumptions it prevents than those it cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable. Do not neglect them until no human skill can master the fatal disease that, fastened on the vitals, sets medicine at defiance. All know the dreadful fatality of lung disease, and they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need say no more than to assure them it is still made the best it can be. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to render it
